

Tradeshow Travel Safety Tips Revealed on Tradeshow Industry Podcast

For immediate release: August 7, 2006

Summary:

Travel and tradeshow expert Marlys Arnold talks about her secrets for packing, organizing and planning travel in a new podcast episode released by Interpretive Exhibits, Inc. She also unveils a few secrets specifically for tradeshow attendees in her recent interview in “The Listening Lounge,” the first tradeshow industry podcast.

Travel and tradeshow expert Marlys Arnold discusses her new interactive CD-ROM Book “Pack Your Bags!”, covering topics such as travel with kids, travel for couples, business travel, and getting through airport security quickly and easily. In the podcast interview, one secret she reveals is that for security reasons tradeshow attendees should not wear their show badges away from the convention center.

Much of Marlys Arnold’s experience relates specifically to the tradeshow industry, so “Pack Your Bags!” contains many videos and multi-media pieces that relate directly to tradeshow business travel as well as general travel.

Interpretive Exhibits’ “The Listening Lounge Podcast,” the tradeshow industry’s first podcast, is available for free downloading or instant audio streaming at http://interpexhibits.com/listening_lounge.shtml. The show is hosted by Interpretive Exhibits’ Vice President of Sales and Marketing Tim Patterson, who has had 25+ years on-air experience in radio and TV.
